

A letter from Bryan Sanders

Dear friends,

These are exciting times at Markel. We have created a new division, Markel Assurance, with the expressed hope that you will find our products more visible and our structure easier to understand and navigate. We are working hard to improve the customer experience, while staying true to the Markel Style and the corporate values that are so important to all of us.

I am privileged to lead a team of talented, motivated, and tireless associates, including our regional presidents, underwriters and product line leaders, and a business development team that tells our story in compelling ways. Markel Assurance is supported by one of the best claims teams in the industry. And we are backed by Markel and an industry-leading balance sheet and track record of financial success.

Like I said, these are exciting times at Markel. We look forward to engaging with you and appreciate your support.

All the best,
Bryan Sanders
